A PAGE FROM REAL LIFE. - The New York correspondent of the Toledo Blade writes :--The story which I sketch in brief was told me by a legal gentleman, who also stands high politically, as we rode homeward in the borse cars last evening. He boards at one of the uptown hotels. One evening he was called upon at the hotel by a lady who said she did not like to call at his office, and yet desired his help. She was wealthy, and had a daughter sixteen years old, but was unhappy, and desired a divorce from a husband who had ceased to love her. The lawyer responded that the matter was easy, if she could furpish the proof of his open and flagrant infidelity, which she promised. The proof was furnished, but still the case did not progress. There was something that remained untold, and she was urged to leave nothing unrevealed which could help her suit. Still she equivocated. Finally, after great urging, the truth came out. Twenty years ago the parties had been married and lived in the same vicinity at a distance from this city. They eloped together, and the husband and wife who were-left behind are still living. They came to New York, were married, grew wealthy, had a daughter just budding into womanhood, were socially popular, and yet the world about them knew nothing of their story. Maddened by the open infidelity of the man whose name she bore, the woman who was really no wife of his determined to obtain a divorce. She was told that it was impossible under the law of New York, as she had no standing as a wife. Subsequently she went to Indiana to obtain a residence and bring a suit there, and while waiting death came to her relief by carrying off her husband. She was di vorced indeed. And thus truth again outdid fiction in the weaving of romance.

THE COCK OF A SILVER WALK. - That peculiarity of climate or scenery, or whatever it may be in its natural surroundings which makes the Pacific slope a character sui generis appears to influence birds and beasts as well as men. A rooster at Virginia City is of quite as original a type as any hero of Mark Twain's sketches or Bret Hart's romances. The rooster mentioned has lately turned his attention to the study of machinery and may always be found in the amalgam sting room of the Consolidated Virginia mill. When they were building the mill the rooster was always about and was fed and petted by the workmen, and as soon as the works were completed he took up his abod; aminst the machinery. He was carried away lest be should get hurt, but returned and demonstrated his ability to take care of himself. Recently the machinery got out of order and the rooster was carried into the engine room, but would not rest until taken back where the amalgamating was going on. Postoffice at the door, and churches of every de-Every morning he rouses the hands by his clarion, and marches about constantly to see that plenty of silver is coming out of the ore. The men assert that when he crows he says: "One million five hundred thousand dollars this month sure!" The impression is that the bird brings good fortune to the mill, and he could not now be purchased at any price below a fortune. . If there is such a thing as metempsychosis, the body of that Virginia City rooster no doubt contains the soul of some man whose love for the almighty dollar amounted to a pas-

How THEY MAKE ICE IN INDIA. - In the open space, where there are no trees, parelleled ditches are dug in the ground three or four feet deep. These are half filled with straw, and nets are stretched over them. On these nets are placed small earthen saucers, holding about a wine-glass of water. There is nothing more to be done but to wait for a clear, starry, and perfectly calm night. When such a night arrives the little saucers are filled with water in the evening, which water by four o'clock in the morning is found to be covered with a thin coating of ice! These cakes of ice are small, it is true, but when they are all thrown together into the ice houses under the ground they form themselves into masses of quite a respectable size. In these primitive icehouses the ice keeps for some time.

The straw is placed in the ditches because it is a bad conductor of heat, and by its means the saucers of water are separated from the ground and receive little or no heat from it. The water therefore, gives out more heat than it receives, so that its temperature is continually lowered until it reaches the freezing point, when it of course becomes ice.

This ice is more or less mixed with bits of straw and with dust. It cannot be used to out into liquids, but placed around tuem makes them delightfully cool and refreshing, and we can well imagine what a luxury it must be in this

A SINGULAR WOMAN. - It would seem, judging from the heroine of the following sketch, that cleanliness is not necessary to perfeet health. A wealthy English widow of the First George's time, never allowed her room to be cleaned, and the windows were so incrusted with dirt as to admit scarcely any light. She reasoned thus when asked for an explanation: If the room were wetted she might catch e ld; if the windows were cleaned glass might be broken and somebody hurt. She never washed herself for fear of cold; as a substitute she annointed her face and neck with a little milk and hog's lard, finished off with a touch of rose pink on the cheeks. She was methodical in all her habits, eating with one particular knife, fork and plate, and drinking out of one cup. She had excellent health, abhored physic and doctors, and cut two teeth at the age of eighty seven. She had no near relations, and refused to see those more dis-tantly related. One pleasant characteristic is recorded; She had a large, well kept garden in which she passed most of her time reading. Although she lived entirely through the reign of the First and Second Georges, and so far into sale by that of the Third, she continued to wear fashions of the time of George II, as being those of her married life. Notwithstanding this she was everywhere treated with respect. Perhaps her gold had something to do with that,

The ladies of Houston, Toxas, have been holding "moonlight fetes," the proceeds being "Galveston, Marshall, Jefferson, Dallas and Polisher, of cleaning paints, &c., for sale by must be first on the list in this labor of love,"
